solutions driven

partnership approach

Currently we rely on fossil fuels as our primary energy source. However, higher fuel costs are driving the growth of alternative energy companies, and the expansion of the renewable energy marketplace. As alternative energy becomes more popular with large scale investment globally, more and more energy specialists are required to fill recruitment demands.

We focus on building partnerships for the long term. Randstad offers a 360° service across all levels of the energy and environmental industry, and all facets of HR services, from recruitment, outsource payrolling to HR Solutions such as assessments, coaching and outplacement.

For every solution we develop, we undertake a comprehensive workforce needs analysis, and build a detailed account management plan that aims to deliver the people resources businesses need.

international reach, local advantage

Due to Randstad's global presence and highly specialized 'know how' in the Energy and Environmental industries in countries such as Germany, Spain and the UK, we have now been able to transfer the working knowledge to Randstad's offices in Greece. With proven success in resourcing energy 'talent' with extensive experience, development in various energy projects, Randstad is the right company to manage your 'energy and environmental' recruitment needs.

Randstad Hellas has access to a global network with offices in more than 44 countries worldwide. We can support your business by sourcing the increasing skills shortage in the energy and environment industries that is being experienced. By combining advanced online search with traditional search and headhunting methods, we are building an enviable reputation for sourcing highly qualified skilled professionals. We achieve our high standards by ensuring that our consultants are well trained industry specialists and can clearly grasp your technical and business needs.

Through the Randstad global network, you will always have access to expert knowledge that is as wide as it is deep - providing the tools, advice, resources and market knowledge to help businesses to always see the big picture.

getting the right outcome

Randstad's recruitment methodology is founded on the commitment to delivering a results-oriented, process driven, personalised service. Our specialist consultants work extremely hard to make every detail matter and since we do not adhere to a 'one size fits all' policy, every assignment is tailor-made to meet your business' needs.

The key to successful candidate selection is not just about skills and capability. That's why Randstad's comprehensive role evaluation plays an important part in ensuring the right cultural fit. Our consultants are professionally trained to guide you through an in-depth briefing process. This guarantees we have the best possible understanding of the role, business background and working environment - confirming the 'essence' of what you are looking for in an ideal candidate.

At Randstad, we're focused on delivering the best possible solution - Energy professionals who have the capability to build and manage the right outcome for your business.
